EXPERIENCE ESPRIT 2015-2016

This season's programming combines music from Iceland, England, France, the U.S.A. and Germany with fine Canadian music. Aiming to bring you music by the most important and influential composers on the international scene, we are featuring works for large orchestra by Thomas Adès on two concerts, as well as performing major pieces by Widmann, Bjarnason and Andrew Norman, the U.S.A.'s fastest-rising young composer.

Our special performance of Darius Milhaud's La création du monde (from 1923) will show that musical crossover techniques had an early beginning through the composer's trans-Atlantic cultural blend of Harlem jazz and Western new music.

As a postlude and souvenir of Esprit's recent tour in China, we will play powerful pieces by Schafer and Louie, both of which received tumultuous audience responses on tour. Meanwhile, we will also feature Widmann's Con Brio, which has a virtuosic timpani part that its composer described as being 'on the verge of the unplayable'. At the tour performance we gave of the piece, he exclaimed that Esprit's interpretation was exhilarating.

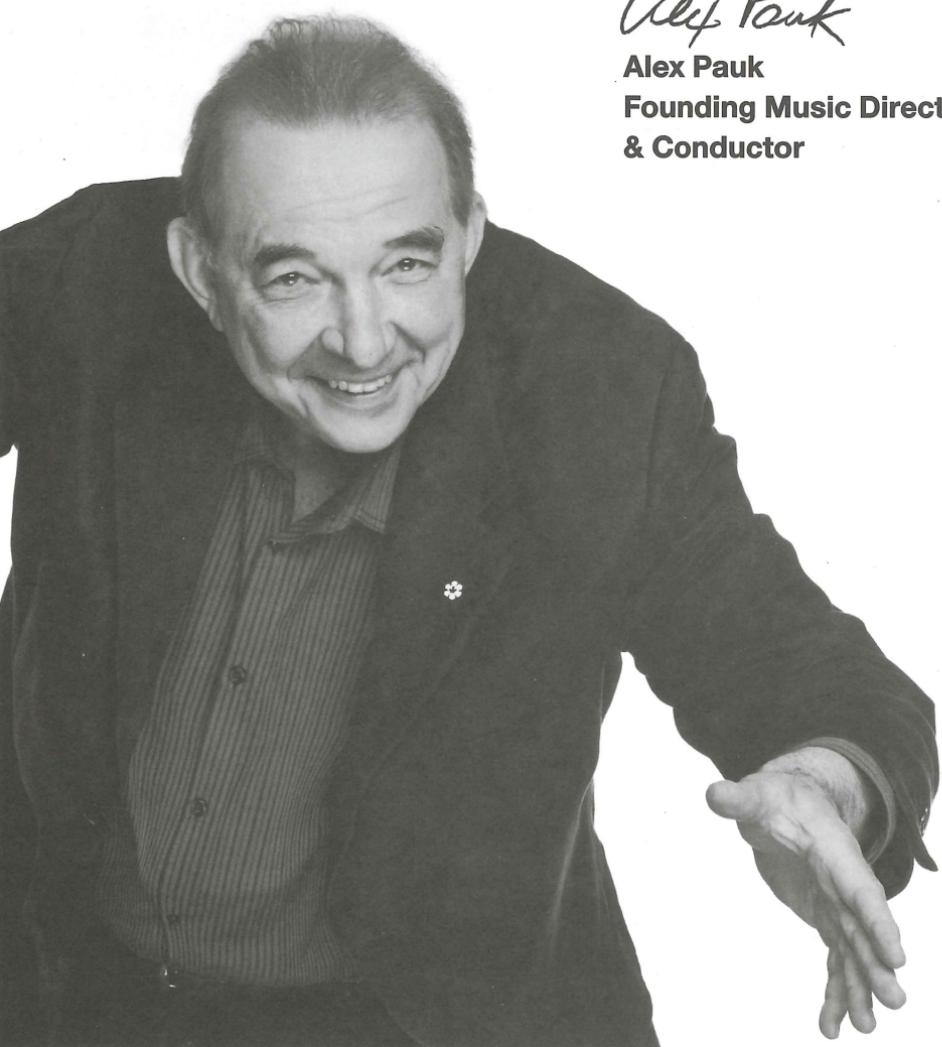

World Premieres have a special place in Esprit programs and this season we've commissioned composers who've previously written highly successful pieces for us - Omar Daniel whose virtuosic new work promises high drama, Douglas Schmidt whose Sirens creates a sense of allure and seduction and Samuel Andreyev whose music is gripping in its combination of intellectual and sensuous elements. My own new work for choir and orchestra, Soul and Psyche, delves into the impact of spiritual and psychological forces on humanity.

Our line-up of exceptional music and guest artists will give you a thrilling and enriching listening experience. I invite you to explore and savour the sounds of Esprit.

Esprit's virtuosity shines in Widmann's astonishingly effervescent translation of fast, furious characteristics from Beethoven symphonies into a torrent, at breakneck speed, in his own tonal language. Daniel's thriller, likewise virtuosic, uses ancient Estonian folk idioms and is inspired by the Nordic myth of the husband killer. To keep memories of another generation alive, Di Castri creates sounds of a fictitious culture to re-imagine places and traditions in an ever-evolving narrative. Adès' suite of a witty, high-camp tango, waltz and foxtrot carries listeners into the surreal the world of his 1995 chamber opera Powder Her Face which recounts the sex scandal and gossip surrounding the Duchess of Argyll in mid-20th century British aristocracy.

Rea's Zephyr, a gentle wind relieving us from storm and stress, takes listeners to sublime destinations. Adès' one-movement symphony, with its astonishing, subtly-layered orchestral sonorities, draws inspiration from the word Tevot which means bars of music in Hebrew and also, in the Bible, is the ark of Noah and the cradle in which the baby Moses is carried on the river. Norman, today's fastest-rising young American composer, in his kaleidoscopic 45-minute, three-movement work (Levels 1,2 & 3), encompasses various meanings of play – some light-hearted, some sinister, with musical ideas furiously ricocheting off one another.

Music of both furious energy and haunting beauty, Bjarnason's piece, through its three movements, moves from loud to quiet, from earthly to ethereal. Louie's imagined ghost opera integrates Eastern and Western musical characteristics to portray dramatic, emotional and mysterious events ranging from ephemeral wisps to flashy, intense explosions of sound. Andreyev has created a work of strong rhythmic character and unusual laminates of timbre. Schafer's trumpet concerto, evoking wind, clouds and sky with birds tracing arcs, aims to catch the spacious resonance of a trumpet playing across a lake at dawn or sunset causing the surrounding forest to echo and vibrate.

Milhaud's dance score, inventively blending Harlem jazz with cutting-edge Western classical music, helped fuel the early 1920s Parisian rage for African and Afro-American art, fashion, dance and music. Janmohamed's work, in the form of miniatures, interweaves melodies from Ismaili Muslim devotional literature, quranic recitation and Indian ragas. Sirens, with their enchanting music and voices as their fatal weapons, appear in the mythologies of many cultures and provide scenarios for Schmidt's alluring new work. Drawing from a rich reservoir of myths, rituals and sacred systems, Pauk brings choir and orchestra together to express a powerful range of humanistic and spiritual themes.

DONATE

Did you know that ticket sales cover only 10% of Esprit's programming costs?

When you make a donation to Esprit, you directly impact the future of Canadian contemporary music. Donations help us continue bringing new music to life by supporting Canadian composers and premiering their music. Your financial support is vital to our success every season.

Here are some of the ways your donation can be used:

- Education and Outreach programming. In addition to our four-concert subscription series, Esprit reaches out to the community through various education and outreach programs. Our Creative Sparks program puts Esprit composers and performers together with music students to mentor them in the writing and performance of their own compositions.
- Sponsor-a-Student Program. Give the gift of music! Enable students to attend our performances by purchasing a subscription on their behalf. Esprit will distribute free tickets to students who would otherwise be unable to attend our concerts.
- General Operations. Donations to our general operations fund enable us to keep commissioning Canadian composers and present high energy, thrilling performances.

How do I donate?

- By cheque payable to Esprit Orchestra
(mailed to 511-174 Spadina Avenue, Toronto ON, M5T 2C2)
- Online through canadahelps.org

We will issue tax receipts for all donations when provided with contact information.
